

Positive Reinforcement

Behavior
occurs

Something added

Happens more often

Remember:

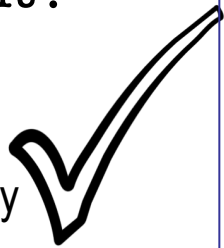

1. Immediately follows a behavior
2. That behavior happens more often in the future

More than a reward!

By definition, positive reinforcement occurs when something is presented immediately following a behavior and as a result, that behavior occurs more often in the future.

Is it positive reinforcement?

Your child eats all the food on their plate at dinner. You give lots of praise and extra screen time after dinner. The next night, they eat all their food again!
